This workshop is for parents, teachers, parent educators, couples, families, child and youth counsellors, psychotherapists, marriage and family therapists, counsellors, students, psychologists, social workers, and anyone interested in raising responsible and resilient children as well as the Adlerian Psychology of Alfred Adler.

The Ontario Society of Adlerian Psychology (ONSAP) invites you to attend a Family Education Program; part of the 2019 Conference.

There is no such thing as a perfect parent, or a perfect child. But research continues to show us our Adlerian methods of parenting do result in launching children more prepared with the essentials they need for resiliency, health and happiness in college, university and their adult life.

In this talk, parents will learn not only the importance of raising responsible children who can bounce back from the inevitable mistakes and challenges inherent in life, but also the pragmatic tactical approaches to train children for responsibility and how to hold them accountable, that you can start to apply at home immediately!

Other parenting sessions that may be of interest during the conference on Saturday include:

Raising Kids with the Courage to be Imperfect, Karen Skinulis
Childhood Anxiety Disorders: Could It Be Social Interest Underdevelopment?, Hamid Alizadeh and R. James Little

**Visit the ONSAP Website for Saturday's conference details.
